Faculty of Biological Sciences

We are seeking fourteen outstanding individuals to help put our Faculty of Biological Sciences at the forefront of bioscience in the UK by 2008. We are looking for people who already have an established international profile, and who can demonstrate their potential to deliver world-class research.

You will also play a part in delivering Leeds' vision to become one of the world's leading universities by conducting research of importance to society and contributing to the development of outstanding graduates and scholars.

The Faculty is well advanced in a £30M program of investment in new buildings and laboratory refurbishment to provide a cutting edge environment for bioscience research. We are also investing in our people; attractive packages will be offered to high-calibre candidates for the following positions:

Protein Structure, Modelling and Design (one position)	Job ref 313034

These Research Fellowships are available as a result of the Roberts Review 'Set for Success' and are three of thirteen awarded to the University this year. These positions are available immediately for five years followed by a transfer to an established academic post (subject to satisfactory completion of probation). In the early stages of the Fellowship there will be a strong emphasis on research, with increasing elements of teaching and outreach to schools over the five year period. The RCUK rules for the scheme indicate that people already in permanent employment will not normally be eligible for appointment.

The area and level of these appointments is defined by our research strategy, however we are also inviting applications from individuals, at any stage of their career, who could bring a strong international reputation to enhance our research profile in any of the above areas, or in any relevant area that could complement other elements of our broader research portfolio. If you wish to be considered for a position at a level other than that advertised, please indicate the area and the level at which you would wish to be considered.
